Black History Month

This month, the girls have been listening to their teachers read the Two Sisters: A Story of Freedom by Kereen Getten. Set in Jamaica and London in 1781, this insightful novel follows the fate of half-sisters Ruth and Anna, who are born to the same slave mother. Ruth's black father was sold when she was a baby, and Anna's father is the white plantation owner. Fearing for their safety on the Plantation, their mother persuades the plantation owner to send them to England. In this heart-stopping adventure, based on real historical events, the girls go on a journey of sisterhood and survival.

The school has competed its first Intra-PE Athletics competition in sprinting, javelin, long jump, high jump and obstacle courses. Congratulations to all the girls that participated.
