Week ending: Friday, 24 February 2023

English:

We have started a new book called Gorilla by Anthony Browne. This week, the girls have been exploring the illustrations in the book to predict what the book may be about. They also compared two scenes between Hannah and her father and Hannah and the gorilla. Describing these two scenes have helped the girls practice using prepositions, adjectives and similes.

Maths:

We have finished our volume unit. Ask your daughter if she can tell you the difference between volume and capacity. We are impressed with how far the girls have come with solving word problems using bar models. We have started money today—the girls have been practicing recognising different coins and notes and their values.
