Winterbourne Junior Girls' School

Year 6 Newsletter 25

Week ending: Friday, 22nd March 2024

This week in English, we started writing a short story based on the mysterious poem "The Listeners" by Walter de la Mare. The girls imagined the background of the main character and described the events of the poem from his perspective.

In Maths, the girls used co-ordinate grids from different starting points and recorded the coordinates of the points. The coordinate grids became more complex as their learning progressed, using all four quadrants and translating and reflecting objects.

In Science, the girls worked on the tasks that involved recognising that if living things don't adapt, change and evolve, they could die out. They learnt how having specific physical features makes it possible for the animal to live in a particular place and in a particular way. The girls particularly enjoyed watching the video clip showing them how animals survive in specific environments.

In PSHE, we are continuing with our Healthy Me 'Jigsaw piece' and exploring the risks and dangers of gangs. The girls looked at what the word 'gang' means and the different reasons people may join a gang.— recognising the dangers that come with this choice.
